National School of Government invites departments to enrol staff for compulsory and mandatory programmes

The National School of Government (NSG) invites government departments to enrol public servants for ten Compulsory and Mandatory Programmes which have been approved by Cabinet as part of efforts towards the professionalisation of the public sector.

The courses cover areas such as executive induction, ethics and anti-corruption, senior management training, supply chain management and the deployment of managers to the coal face to strengthen service delivery.

The courses are the following:

- Compulsory Induction Programme (CIP): For new public service entrants across levels from entry to chief director level (L1-14).
- Executive Induction Programme (EIP): Directors-General and Deputy Directors-General (L15-16).
- Khaedu Training: Action-learning deployment for senior managers focused on service delivery sites (L11-16).
- Introduction to Financial Management Delegation of Authority in the Public Sector, targeting managers with financial delegations (L9-16).
- SMS Pre-Entry Programme (Nyukela): Mandatory pre-entry online qualification required before appointment or promotion to Senior Management Service (L13-16).
- Ethics in the Public Service: Core online module to build accountability and professional standards (L1-16).
- Supply Chain and Financial Management: Mandatory modules covering procurement, avoiding irregular expenditure, and asset control (L6-16).
- Managing Performance in the Public Sector, targeting all public servants who manage their own and team performance (L6-12).
- Basic and Advanced Project Management (L6-12), for junior, middle and senior managers.
- Re-Orientation in the Public Service for employees who joined the Public Service before 1 July 2012 and have never attended any mandatory Induction programme before (L1-16).

Enrolment for the programmes and enquiries should be sent to:
Contactcentre@thensg.gov.za and 0861008326.
